

Subject of invention

A device for adjustment of suspension mechanism of the wing-flap system's members of an aircraft according to Inventor's Certificate N183596, characterized in that for the purpose of improving performance of the device a carriage of the wing-flap system's member, e.g. a wing slat, is rigidly connected with the wing spar by the bracket.